For over 170 years, Fraser Milner Casgrain LLP (FMC) has distinguished itself as one of Canada's leading business and litigation law firms. With more than 500 lawyers in offices located in Montréal, Ottawa, Toronto, Edmonton, Calgary and Vancouver, FMC offers the depth of experience and trusted legal advice to help clients succeed. Where a transaction or project requires an array of specialized knowledge or expertise, or where jurisdictional complexities or time pressures demand additional resources, the strength of our national law firm can quickly be made available. Regardless of where you choose to do business in Canada, FMC offers the same level of high quality service.

We offer experienced counsel with recognized expertise in all major areas of practice, including: corporate and commercial law; securities; oil and gas and pipelines; mining; electricity; financial services and banking; taxation; aviation law, competition and anti-trust; international trade; real estate; employment and labour; construction; project financing; information technology; structured finance; trusts and estates; and litigation including alternative dispute resolution through domestic and international arbitrations and mediations.

FMC's clients include major corporations (both private and public) in all sectors of the economy, national and international companies active in Canada and abroad, entrepreneurs and emerging businesses, as well as governments and financial institutions. Our clients are involved in financial services, communications, advanced technologies, e-commerce, pharmaceuticals and biotechnology, oil and gas, energy, insurance, health care, manufacturing, real estate, construction, retail, professional services, transportation, forestry, mining and many other industries.

FMC prides itself on being able to deliver effective solutions which advance the strategic interests of our clients. We do this by leveraging our diverse professional capabilities and strong business acumen with a clear understanding of our clients' needs and priorities.

We believe, first and foremost, that our success is tied directly to the success of our clients. As such, our approach is client-focused and results-driven. We offer pragmatic advice and our effort is a collaborative exercise, led by the appropriate partner, assisted by the proper professionals.
